

Find Resources to Match Your Curriculum With Explore

ABC-CLIO's online databases integrate two methods for quickly finding resources related to commonly taught topics.

- The Explore section of each database offers a set of collected, authoritative resources—articles, primary source materials, and teaching ideas—to support common instructional topics
- The Correlations tools in the Staff Edition take you directly to resources that match an objective in your state's current social studies curriculum or a unit and chapter in a state-approved textbook

What's in Explore?

The Explore section in each database is organized by types of topics that correspond to each database's content.

Eras—American History, World History: Ancient and Medieval Eras,
World History: The Modern Era

Topics—American Government

Countries—World Geography: Understanding a Changing World

States—United States Geography

Issues—Issues: Understanding Controversy and Society

Wars—United States at War

For example, in American History, there are 34 distinct Eras on commonly taught topics such as Westward Expansion, the Great Depression, the Civil Rights movement, and Post-Watergate America.

An Overview for each era, topic, country, state, issue, and war includes an Overview essay. The Overview essay page offers links to more in-depth information, which may include facts and figures, primary sources, and teacher support such as activities and discussion questions.

Build Lessons around a Topic Overview

- Save time by assigning students selected readings or a complete lesson to begin a unit of study. Remember, every Explore topic offers an Overview, Related Links, and links to primary sources. Many also include Activities, and/or Discussion Questions
- All lessons are flexible and scalable. Have your students read through the material and complete the Activity and/or Discussion questions independently, in groups, or as a class activity
